THE BURLINGTON MARKETS

Television shows in Sugar, Fresh Eggs and Butter.

Wednesday, Jan. 9, 1918. The market to-day was rather quiet as regards any changes in prices. There was as much tension in some items as in many weeks past, in sugar for instance, in fresh eggs, and butter. Liquid sugar made from sugar cane, a thick syrup, has made its appearance and has brought retail prices down. Mainly, though, from various sources come reports of many would-be purchasers of sugar being unable to procure even a pound to be had, while from at least one source comes a report that a certain man was able to secure much more than five pounds.

One or two increases are noted in retail grains this week. There are no changes in fruits, and none in meats or groceries. In the retail fish and sea foods, oysters are listed at 75 cents a quart. The following prices for the market of this week are taken from the Free Press by P. D. Kelley, grocer, R. E. Howard, meat dealer, the Burlington Fish company, the Burlington Fruit company and the A. D. Pease Company.
